SEVERE STORM DOES NO HARM

Wind Storm of Great Velocity Sweeps over the County Causing Uneasiness but no Damage. High Waters Reported.

Sweeping over the country with terrific velocity, the tornado which visited the western part of the United States earlier in the week arrived over this section Wednesday evening, breaking suddenly and with no warning. The storm followed the warmer weather and rain that had prevailed for several days and caused a drop in temperature during the night.

Between three and four o'clock in the morning the storm became so violent that many people in town left their beds while many others lay awake for several hours. Houses were shaken very noticeably and beds rocked. The wind continued all night and with less severity during the day.

No damage of any consequence is reported from Adams County and no loss worth mentioning is known to have resulted from the storm. Some thunder and lightning accompanied the wind.

The rain and warm weather of the early part of the week weakened the ice on the nearby creeks and some danger was threatened along Marsh Creek this morning when the stream, greatly swollen and carrying huge cakes of ice which broke on Wednesday, swept close to some farm houses. At the homes of Mervin Bishop and Aaron Fleck the water came up almost to the doors. No real damage from this source has been reported, however, and the streams are expected to subside quickly.

Tax Collector Brown reports all taxes paid for 1911. East Berlin is glad to be one of the three districts in the county entirely settled according to the financial report recently published.

D. P. Wagner, of this place, has bought a 40 horsepower Michigan touring car. It is a 1912 model and is equipped with electric lights and self starting apparatus.

The new American flag which was presented to the schools today was unfurled on a 56 ft. pole which was brought from the Pigeon Hills by Samuel Altland.

James Bosserman, of near Amatus, so seriously injured one of his lower limbs last Thursday while handling wood that Dr. Spatz was obliged to make a number of stitches to close the wound.

INDIANS HERE ON TRIP WEST

Family of Twenty Three Cherokee Indians from Oklahoma Stop at Gettysburg on Return Trip Home. Travel by Team.

Twenty three Cherokee Indians, all one family—originally spotted as gypsies when they drove into Gettysburg on Wednesday but later found to be real red men and women—are here for several days on their return trip to Oklahoma from where they started five months ago for Washington to secure land on a government reservation. They accomplished the object of their visit and a week ago started on the return trip, arriving here in Wednesday's driving rain and deciding to stay until weather conditions became more favorable.

Mrs. Mary Lehan, is the leading spirit in the bunch. She and her husband with their twenty one children, fifteen girls and six boys, make up as good natured a party as any picnicers which ever out of Gettysburg for a Fourth of July outing. The entire crowd is quartered in the stable formerly occupied by Warren and Weikert, their caravan of five wagons and twelve horses occupying the main part of the building and the family using the small office.

"Are these all your children?" asked a Times representative of the mother.

"Sure, can't you see them?" she replied. "It's a full house."

"How many are there?"

"Ah, papooses a plenty. Twenty one in all."

"Who has charge of the party?" was the next question.

"Me the boss. My husband's along and all my family. It's all one big family. That tall man is my son."

There are two tall men in the party, one the father and the other the oldest son who, with the mother, seems to be personally conducting the overland tour.

Plenty of bad weather was encountered on the way east but the entire crowd kept in good health according to their own statements. Their horses are in fine shape too and appear to be well fed and well taken care of. The women make some money selling trinkets and telling fortunes, carrying papers from various mayors and others in authority giving Mrs. Lehan recommendations and permitting her to ply her trade in their various bailiwicks. Burgess Holtzworth refused similar permission here.

The interesting party were visited by many local people since their arrival. They are a pleasant, happy family, ready and glad to talk to all comers.

MONEY IN MAIL BOX

PRACTICE MUST END

Postmaster C. Wm. Beales has received notice from Postmaster Hitchcock at Washington to instruct the rural free delivery route carriers to caution persons owning mail boxes along their routes against the practice of depositing money in such boxes for which to pay for money orders or registration of letters, instead of personally seeing the carrier and having the order filled out in the regulation way.

The postoffice department holds that the practice of placing money in the mail boxes is too conducive to theft and dishonesty, with resulting loss, besides affording no end of difficulty and possible embarrassment to the carrier. Hereafter in every such case reported or discovered the postmaster and carrier will call attention to the risk incurred and will request the person to desist. The carrier will do this in person, if possible. Leaving the receipt in the box, he will fill out an application form from the patron, according to directions left by the latter, and will present the application, with money, at the postoffice.

The post office in transmitting the receipt detached from the coupon on the money order will inclose a notice informing the applicant that, in purchasing a money order in future, to avoid risk of loss he must pay the money to the carrier personally, taking a receipt or must appear in person at the postoffice.

MUCH DAMAGE IN RUNAWAY

Horse of J. B. Wineman Runs away, Damaging Delivery Wagon and Sustaining Injury which may Prove Fatal.

The horse of J. B. Wineman, Centre Square grocer, was seriously injured and the delivery wagon of the store damaged extensively in a runaway which occurred this morning. It is feared that the injuries sustained by the horse may make it unfit for further service.

John Bowers had been delivering goods at the Seminary refectory and had gone into the building, allowing the horse to stand without being tied. During his absence the animal started away and ran on Confederate avenue to Springs avenue where it turned towards town. Half way in that street the wagon overturned and the horse was crushed a wheel mashed and other damage sustained. The shafts were broken and a long piece of wood entered one of the horse's hind legs above the foot, penetrating a great distance and inflicting a wound which, it is feared, will permanently disable the animal.

After being freed from the wagon the horse continued on towards Chambersburg street and took to the pavement at the Slenz property, continuing around the square on the side walk. After running for some distance it was finally caught. Dr. Hudson is making an effort to save the horse.

That more persons were not about at the time likely averted more disastrous results from the runaway.

AMERICAN ADMIRAL DEFIES CHINESE REBELS
Murdoch Maintains Right of Foreign Shipping.

Washington, Feb. 22.—How it remained for an American admiral, of all the naval commanders in Chinese waters during the revolution, to assert and maintain the right of foreign shipping to remain unmolested is told in an official report to the navy department from Admiral Murdoch, commanding the Asiatic station.
The scene of the incident, which bears a striking resemblance to the famous episode in Rio harbor two decades ago, when Admiral Benham defied the Brazilian rebels, was at Wu Sung, near Shanghai, in the Yangtze.
The revolutionists were in practical possession of the city of Shanghai and had ordered all foreign shipping to vacate the International anchorage at Wu Sung. With one exception the foreigners acceded to the demand. Admiral Murdoch refused and told the messengers who brought the notice that he would not tolerate any unnecessary interference with American shipping, even to the extent of removing it from the line of fire of the shore forts.
At that moment the fleet collier Abanenda steamed along and an armed junk bore down upon the ship to board her. The captain of the Abanenda, himself a civilian, lined up his civilian crew, armed them with rifles, and with his officers wearing revolvers at their belts, stood by to repel the boarding party.
At that turn the junk cleared off, put about and allowed the Abanenda to proceed to her own anchorage.

BLACK HAND'S REVENGE
Man Found in New York With Ten Terrible Wounds on Body.
New York, Feb. 22.—In the finding of the mutilated body of Joseph Bruno in a vacant lot in East New York the police recognized another case of the vengeance of the Black Hand.
There were ten knife slashes in the face, ten terrible wounds in the body and, as a quietus, an eight-inch butcher knife was driven straight into the man's heart, where it still stuck when the body was found.
In addition, the murderers had cut part of Bruno's tongue away, evidence, the police say, that the killing was due to Bruno having talked more than his friends relished.

BRANDT'S 30 YEAR TERM ABROGATED
Justice Gerard Grants Writ of Habeas Corpus.

IS REMANDED TO PRISON
Former Valet of New York Banker Will Be Released on Bail—Will Get New Trial.

New York, Feb. 22.—Justice James W. Gerard handed down a decision upholding the habeas corpus writ in the case of Foulke M. Brandt, former valet of Mortimer L. Schiff, who has served five years of a thirty-year term on a charge of burglary. Brandt is remanded to the Tombs.

Brandt is now in the position of a man who has never been tried for the crime for which he has been doing time. He pleaded guilty to burglary in the first degree, although it is admitted now that there was no evidence against him to sustain such a conviction on such a charge. The grand jury has been investigating evidence that there was a conspiracy on foot to railroad the young man into the penitentiary.

Besides the burglary in the first degree indictment, Brandt is charged with assault with intent to kill, and with larceny.
Brandt must remain in the Tombs until bail has been fixed and furnished or until his trial. Following a telephone communication between Mirabeau L. Towns, attorney for Brandt, Justice Gerard and District Attorney Whitman, it was agreed that Brandt would have to remain in the Tombs until Friday, when he would be released on bail, the necessary bond being furnished by a surety company.

In his decision Justice Gerard said: "I hold that when a defendant puts in a formal plea of guilty, that then, if the judge proceeds to swear the defendant, and learns from him that the act which he admits doing did not, in fact, constitute the crime to which he pleads guilty, and that the defendant did not in reality intend to plead guilty to that crime, then the judge who sits to protect the interests of the prisoner as well as the state, is not justified in accepting the plea and imposing sentence, but is without jurisdiction to sentence a prisoner for a crime which it is plain the prisoner does not admit that he committed or to which he does not plead guilty."

"This case enunciates the principle as to the error of the judge."
"When I stated that the judge committed an error I did not state that in the sense that he intended designedly to harm or deceive the prisoner."

CHEMICAL BILL PASSED
Measure Goes Through House by Vote of 178 to 127.
Washington, Feb. 22.—For the first time since the insurgent Republicans broke away from the regulars in the fight on the petroleum duty in the Payne tariff bill in 1909, the Republicans of the House presented practically a solid front against the passage of a tariff revision measure.
All insurgents voted with the regular Republican forces against the Underwood chemical tariff which was passed, however, by a vote of 178 to 127.
The last stand of the Republicans was on the motion of Representative John Balzell, to recommit the bill with instructions to insert a number of the amendments proposed by the Republicans to restore many articles to the free list which the bill make dutiable. His motion was defeated, 181 to 139. The insurgents opposed the measure on the ground that it was a revision upward instead of downward.

Knox Sails on Friday.
Washington, Feb. 22.—Because of the severe storm along the southern coast, Secretary Knox will board the cruiser Washington at Key West instead of Palm Beach, Fla. He will embark on the morning of Feb. 23. This will not necessitate any change in his itinerary.

Child Scalded to Death.
Seaford, Del., Feb. 22.—Leaving her two-year-old child in the kitchen while she went into another room, Mrs. John Neal was horrified upon returning to find her child scalded by a coffee pot spitting on the child. When picked up the flesh peeled off the child's body. It lived only a short time.

Stork Hovers Over Astors.
Newport, R. I., Feb. 22.—Society circles here hear that the stork is expected to make a visit in July to Colonel John Jacob Astor and his bride, who was Miss Madeline Force, of New York. Colonel and Mrs. Astor are now in Egypt.

ENGINEERS' DEMANDS
Railway Managers to Meet Engineers on March 14.
New York, Feb. 22.—At a meeting here of the conference committee of managers authorized to act in behalf of the forty-eight railroads in the eastern territory, the wage demands recently made upon the railroads by their engineers were discussed, and it was decided to hold a joint conference of managers and engineers here, beginning March 14.
The demands of the engineers call for increases ranging from 15 to 50 per cent, and the standardization of wages of engineers employed on all the lines involved.
A. W. Sullivan, speaking for the managers, said that although the committee talked over the engineers' demands they took no further action than to set the date for the joint conference.

TWO DEAD ON CINDER DUMP
Poisonous Fumes Believed to Have Caused Their Death.
South Bethlehem, Pa., Feb. 22.—The lives of two unidentified men, both well dressed, were snuffed out by gas fumes at the Bethlehem Steel company's cinder dump.
In the pockets of one was a pay envelope with the name William Weiss on it. The men are supposed to have wandered to the cinder dump, where they lay down to sleep.
During the night several carloads of molten slag were dumped down the slope, at the bottom of which they slept. The poisonous fumes are believed to have killed them.

ENGLAND, FEARING COAL STRIKE, NEAR PANIC
Workmen Are Confident and Defiant.

London, Feb. 22.—Great Britain is steadily slipping into a condition of panic over the impending coal stoppage.
The public, which at first hesitated to regard the threat seriously, is now realizing incalculably the dangers and privations inevitably consequent upon the strike. The acceptance of the premier's invitation by the coal owners and the men's representatives to confer separately with the government means nothing, and in no way commits either side.
While the cabinet is attempting to bring about a solution, the men's leaders are perfecting arrangements to make the strikers' position invulnerable. The French, German and Belgian miners are committed to sympathetic action in the event of Great Britain seeking coal in any of these countries.

The government is in such a position that it can only bring pressure in last resort upon the coal owners, as the men are so confident that they are absolutely defiant of all authority.
The men's manifesto shows that a wide gap still separates them from even the English coal owners, who alone can agree to recognize the principle of the minimum wage scale, while the Welsh owners absolutely decline to consider it in any shape.

LIGHTNING FIRES BARN
Cows Burned in Fire Caused by Mid-winter Bolt.
Media, Pa., Feb. 22.—The large stone and frame stable of Atwood Coburn, in Middletown township, was struck by lightning and was burned to the ground. Seven cows were burned to death.
The storm was a most unusual one. Shortly after noon a flash of lightning was followed by a rumble of thunder. The thunder storm continued for some time.
After the first flash the rain began to pour in torrents and many of the streets of Media were flooded where crossings had been blocked with ice and slush.

Spaniards Battle With Moors.
Melilla, Morocco, Feb. 22.—A sanguinary combat has been fought by the Spanish soldiers and tribesmen at the foot of Mount Zlata in which the Spaniards lost six killed and twenty-eight wounded. The cavalry inflicted great loss to the enemy. The Moors had 100 killed and many wounded. The operation permits the advance of the Spaniards into an extensive zone of territory.

ROOSEVELT ON ISSUES FOR 1912

Announces Progressive Platform in Ohio Speech.

STILL FOR SQUARE DEAL

Colonel Advocates Recall of Court Decisions and Judges By Vote of People—Holds Human Rights Paramount to Property Rights.

Columbus, O., Feb. 22.—"Recall" of judicial decisions of the state supreme courts by a referendum vote of the people; government regulation of "big business," even to the extent of fixing prices if necessary; direct nominations, including delegates to national conventions; the short ballot; direct legislation by means of the initiative and referendum, and, in a measure, the recall, including its possible application to judges, were advocated by Colonel Theodore Roosevelt in a speech before the Ohio constitutional convention.

This utterance by the former president is what has been heralded as the "Progressive platform" on which the fight will be waged by the friends of the conel to make him the Republican presidential nominee.

No intimation was made by the speaker as to his intention of accepting the nomination, the only expression tending in that direction being this declaration, in connection with the direct preferential primaries for the selection of national delegates:

"Now as good citizens, we are all of us willing to acquiesce cheerfully in a nomination secured by the expression of a majority of the people, but we do not like to acquiesce in a nomination secured by adroit political management in defeating the wish of the majority of the people."

"Flintlock legislation," "big business," "square deal," "age-long contest waged against privilege," "the cause of the people," "guilty of anti-social conduct," "crook in public life," and other expressions with a Rooseveltian flavor were generously sprinkled through the advice of the former president to the Democrats and Republicans, progressive and conservative, who are struggling to frame a new constitution for submission to the people of Ohio.

"A Charter of Democracy" was the title of Colonel Roosevelt's speech. Throughout he quoted frequently from Lincoln and cited actions of that president as the basis of his own proposals for insuring a truly representative government, a government in which "human rights" shall be "supreme over all other rights," in which wealth shall be "the servant, not the master of the people."

"Recall" of Court Decisions. Chief as the means of attaining this, at least the proposal to which Colonel Roosevelt devoted by far the greater part of his speech, and to which he gave especial emphasis, is the referendum of judicial opinions by the state supreme courts. He declared that Lincoln "secured what was practically the recall of the Dred Scott decision," and said:

"There is one kind of recall in which I very earnestly believe, and the immediate adoption of which I urge. When a judge decides a constitutional question, when he decides what the people as a whole can or cannot do, the people should have the right to recall that decision if they think it wrong. We should hold the judiciary in all respect; but it is both absurd and degrading to make fetters of a judge or of any one else."

"Many eminent lawyers believe, and sometimes assert, that the American people are not fitted for popular government, and that it is necessary to keep the judiciary independent of the majority or of all the people. . . . If the American people are not fit for popular government, and if they should of right be the servants and not the masters of the men who then live on themselves put into office, then Lincoln's work was wasted and the whole system of government upon which this great democratic republic rests is a failure."

Again Colonel Roosevelt said: "I believe in a pure democracy. With Lincoln I hold that 'this country, with its institutions, belongs to the people who inhabit it.'"

Of the recall of judges themselves the speaker said: "The question is one of expediency merely. Each community has the right to try the experiment for itself in whatever shape it pleases. I do not believe in adopting the recall save as a last resort when it has become clearly evident that no other course will achieve the desired result."

At the same time he declared that it "is nonsense to say that impeachment meets the difficulty."

Control of "Big Business." Colonel Roosevelt declared for government regulation of "big business" and said: "The anti-trust law does good insofar as it can be invoked against combinations which really are monopolies or which restrict production or which artificially raise prices. But insofar as its workings are uncertain or as it threatens corporations which have not been guilty of anti-social conduct it does harm."

COLONEL ROOSEVELT.

Characteristic Pose of Former President While Speaking.

© 1910, by American Press Association.

What Roosevelt Advocates.—"Recall" by popular vote of decisions of state supreme courts involving constitutional questions, so that the people themselves shall be the final resource to define any constitutional point; the short ballot and few elective offices; direct nominations, including selection of national delegates at preferential presidential primaries; direct election of United States senators; initiative and referendum; the recall with certain restrictions and applicable to judges, if the people desire, although he personally prefers another system; constitutions that are readily amendable; a pure democracy; workmen's compensation acts, and regulation of hours of labor for children and women.

What Roosevelt Opposes.—"Flintlock" legislation as applied to modern conditions making a constitution an instrument to thwart the right of the people to rule themselves; and "checks or balances" that will prevent the righting of "grave social wrongs" or prevent the free exercise of the popular will for the advancement of human welfare, and impeachment of judges as a remedy for conditions which call for prompter action.

Roosevelt on "Big Business."—Favors federal regulation of corporations with control of monopoly prices, if necessary, in exceptional cases; would encourage legitimate and honest business with equal opportunity for all; would drive money and privilege out of politics; "square deal" for wage-earner, producer and consumer; advocates fixed governmental policy which shall give in advance full information of what is legal and what is illegal; opposes effort to regulate business by long-drawn lawsuits; declares Sherman law can do only a trifling part in the regulation of business that is needed.

"It is absurd and wicked to treat the deliberate lawbreaker as on an exact par with the man eager to obey the law, whose only desire is to find out from some competent government authority what the law is and live up to it. It is absurd to endeavor to regulate business by means of long-drawn-out lawsuits."

"There should be a fixed governmental policy which clearly define and punish wrongdoing and give in advance full information to any man as to just what he can and just what he cannot legally and properly do."

"Where regulation by competition (which is, of course, preferable) proves insufficient, we should not shrink from bringing governmental regulation to the point of control of monopoly prices if it should ever become necessary to do so, just as in exceptional cases railway rates are now regulated."

In this same connection the former president praised Senator LaFollette, saying:

"Following Senator LaFollette, a number of practical workers and thinkers in Wisconsin have turned that state into an experimental laboratory of wise governmental action in aid of social and industrial justice. They have initiated that kind of progressive government which means not only the preservation of true democracy, but the extension of the principle of true democracy into industrialism as well as into politics."

BIG FIRE SWEEPS HOUSTON, TEXAS

Flames Destroy 25 Blocks of Buildings.

THOUSANDS ARE HOMELESS

Scores of Residences, Stores and Industrial Plants Burned—Loss May Reach $10,000,000.

Houston, Tex., Feb. 22.—Impelled by a gale that swept in with one of the coldest "northerners" of the winter, fire swept through the eastern section of Houston.

At least twenty-five blocks of the city have been destroyed. More than 250 residences and stores are in ruins. Several big manufacturing plants were burned. Thousands of persons are now homeless.

The losses are conservatively estimated at from $6,000,000 to $10,000,000. The greater part of this is confined to the lumber and cotton industries. Fifty thousand bales of cotton stored in warehouses and compresses were burned. This item alone means a loss of $2,000,000.

The fire started in a cottage near the Southern Pacific railroad tracks. Its origin has not been definitely established. A roaring wind picked up the flames and hurled them to neighboring cottages and board houses. In a flash these ignited, spouting great columns of sparks. Seizing these the forty-mile gale carried them two and three blocks. Within half an hour after the fire started a great area of small residences was in flames.

The fire spread rapidly to manufacturing plants that bordered on cottages and boarding houses where hundreds of workmen lived. It spread so rapidly that firemen for the time abandoned attempts to check the flames, devoting their energies to warning householders. Possible loss of life was thus averted.

At the big manufacturing plants and cotton compresses city firemen and volunteers had organized to fight the onrushing flames. Walls and roofs of the plants were water-soaked. This water was flung up in the flash of an eye by the advance guard of sparks, however, and when the great columns of flames reached the factories they succumbed as easily and with less resistance than rows of the cottages.

An hour after the flames began their advance the firemen organized for a final stand at Buffalo Bayou, a small stream that divides the eastern part of the city from the main section. Every piece of fire fighting apparatus was stationed along the banks of this stream, which, if passed by the fire, meant the destruction of the entire city. As the advancing columns of fire began to hiss toward the bayou banks hundreds of streams of water were hurled into them, checking little by little their progress.

At some of the narrower portions of the stream the flames leaped across, but the more substantial buildings they reached did not afford the tinder-like fuel heretofore encountered. The fire was checked after seven hours.

The thousands of persons who were driven from their homes in the cold of the north suffered slightly from exposure. Relief work was immediately set under way, however, and food and clothing provided for the refugees. Many persons were hurt during the fire, but so far as can be determined there were no serious casualties.

The burned area is at least a mile and a half long, and at points a quarter of a mile wide. It embraced long rows of cottages and solid streets of manufacturing plants. It was swept clean by the flames. Nothing was saved.

The Girl He Forgot

Henshaw laughed when he asked Elizabeth Blake to accept Wharton, whom she had never met, as her particular escort at the theater party which Henshaw was planning to give the following week.

"I'll be delighted," said Elizabeth. "But what's the joke?"

"Jim Wharton's the joke," replied Henshaw. "I don't suppose he ever took a girl anywhere in his life. He boards where I do."

The night of the party Jim's costume was certainly irreproachable, and but for a certain shyness, which troubled him more than it did any one else, his manners were irreproachable. Elizabeth was the most tactful of her sex, so when she found that her attempts at conversation seemed merely to startle and embarrass her escort, she asked most of the time to Henshaw and Pauline Curtis, who were her neighbors on the other side. Being thus left to himself, Jim was free to enjoy the play.

It was several minutes after the curtain had fallen on the final act before Elizabeth, who had been busily collecting her possessions, looked around in search of Jim and discovered that there was no such person anywhere to be seen. She gave a little purl of mingled surprise and amusement. Henshaw turned toward her at the sound, and when he saw the vacant chair he, too, laughed.

"You followed instructions too well, Elizabeth," he said. "I didn't mean for you to obliterate yourself so entirely that he could go beating it off alone like that."

Not until Jim, still chuckling to himself in retrospective enjoyment of the play, took out his watch and began to wind it, which was his first step in the process of going to bed, was he assailed by an unpleasant and all too familiar sensation. He recognized it. "I've lost something," he said to himself, beginning to feel about and tried to think. It couldn't have been his ticket to the play, for he had been there and come home again. "Great play," he soliloquized. "I don't know when I've enjoyed anything so much. I wonder if Tom—"

Here he struck a clew. "Why, where is Tom?" he asked, thoughtfully. "We certainly went together. Then, like a flash, it all came back in one horrible, overwhelming flood. When Tom returned and stopped in Jim's room on his way to his own, he found a pale, disheveled, dejected creature sitting on the side of the bed, one large shoe in his hand, gazing wildly into space. Jim turned a haggard face toward the intruder.

"Nice man you are!" said Tom, disgustedly. "Any time I undertake to make a social butterfly out of you again!"

Wharton groaned. "Say," he asked, "what does a fellow do when things like this happen?"

Tom started for the door, smothering a yell of delight. "They don't happen," he said, chokingly, as he disappeared.

About 5 o'clock the next morning Henshaw was awakened by a knock on his door. When the door was opened slightly Wharton's dejected countenance appeared in the crack.

"Tom," he said, "I've hardly slept a wink. I've just got to do something."

Tom reached for a pillow and threw it at the long, sad face. "Go and do it then," he shouted. "But if you bother me again, I'll—"

The door closed on the uncompleted sentence.

If Wharton could have seen Elizabeth's mirthful countenance that evening when she read his name on the card which the maid handed her he would have been tempted to dive headlong out of the window. When she entered the room in which he was waiting for her, however, she was smiling enough.

"Good evening, Mr. Wharton," she said, with cold politeness. "Won't you have a chair?"

"A chair?" repeated Jim, looking about wildly. "I—I—don't believe I need one, thank you. That is, I can't stay but a minute. Miss Blake. I wanted Tom to come with me to tell you what a fool I am. He knew I'd do something awful. He hadn't any business to make me go last night. Miss Blake, I don't know what to say," he went on, cheerlessly. "If there's anything I can do to square myself, I'd be glad to do it. I know there isn't any excuse for a bonehead like me."

Jim was pallid with misery by this time. "I know you can't forgive me and I don't ask it. I just came to say that I wish you'd get somebody to kick me around the block. I can't apologize, for there's no apology that I can make. The only thing I can say for myself, is that you're the first, I may say, the only girl, I ever forgot."

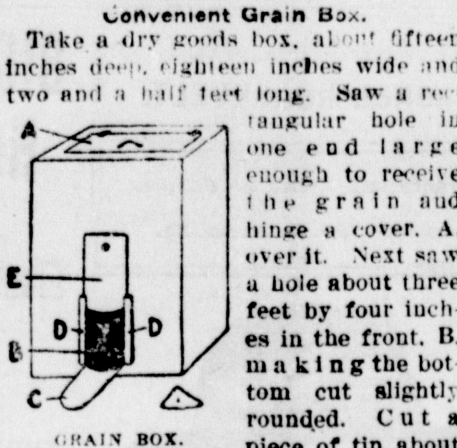

It was not until Elizabeth had dropped upon the piano stool and with her head resting on the piano had very nearly gone into hysterics that Jim realized his blunder. Then he, too, laughed.

Elizabeth's picture now decorated the back of Jim's watch, and underneath, placed there at her request, were the words: "The first and only girl."

Missouri does not excel in some lines of production, but she holds the banner for the biggest mules and corn-cobs produced in the country.

If one is located in a section where broom corn does well it is a paying crop, the price per ton of good quality product being about $240 per ton.

Convenient Grain Box. Take a dry goods box, about fifteen inches deep, eighteen inches wide and two and a half feet long. Saw a rectangular hole in one end large enough to receive the grain and hinge a cover, A, over it. Next saw a hole about three feet by four inches in the front, B, making the bottom cut slightly rounded. Cut a piece of tin about three and one-half inches wide for a chute, C, curve it to fit the cut at the bottom of B and nail in place. Nail two small strips of wood, D, with a groove in the edge of each, to the box, so that a door, E, will slide up and down easily.

Make the door of a thin piece of board and round it at the bottom so as to fit snugly on the chute. By raising the door the grain will run out into a measure. Screw the box to the wall in the barn in a convenient place about three feet from the floor.—Farm and Fireside.

A Way Open

Many a Gettysburg Reader Knows It Well.

There is a way one to convince the greatest skeptic. Scores of Gettysburg people have made it possible. The public statement of their experience is proof the like of which has never been produced before in Gettysburg. Read this case of it given by a citizen:

Mrs. C. W. Colp 428 S. Washington street, Gettysburg Pa., says: "I have still greater faith in Dean's Kidney Pills today than when I publicly recommended them two years ago. I found them to be an excellent kidney medicine. A member of my family had kidney trouble, as the result of an attack of the measles. Backache caused much suffering and there were pains in the side which made lifting an impossibility. The kidney secretions were also unnatural. Dean's Kidney Pills were finally procured at the People's Drug Store and their use was followed by great relief. I advise anyone afflicted with kidney complaint to give Dean's Kidney Pills a trial."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cts. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Dean's—and take no other.

"I have been using PARISIAN SAGE about a year. When I began to use it I had only a light 'fuzz' on my head. Now I have a good thick growth, and it is growing thicker and longer right along. Many people don't believe it can be done, but I know from my own experience with PARISIAN SAGE that it can; I recommend it in the fullest confidence.—Gaines Brown, 708 North Fillmore street, Maryville, Mo.

In and Out.

Soon after Martin W. Littleton was elected to congress he went to Washington and spent several hours watching the senate and house in action. He happened in the senate while a filibuster which closed the last regular session, was in the midst of a speech that had no bearing on the case at issue. His sole object was to kill time.

"Great Scott!" said Littleton. "I was never so bored in my life. Why do they allow a man to take up the time of the senate in this manner?"

"Why," whispered a member of the house, "did you not realize that he was drinking steadily between paragraphs?"

"Yes, I saw him drinking water from time to time," replied the New Yorker, "but what effect could that have upon the case?"

"That wasn't water. It might have looked like it from a distance, but it was Scotch highballs he was taking to stimulate himself," was the reply.

"Well," said Littleton, "all I have to say is that what went in was a good deal stronger and better than what came out."—New York World.

The amount of butter fat a cow produces depends on the amount of milk as well as upon the quality of the milk.
